

Transforming careers
unleashing potential
He tirohanga kē - he aranga oranga
The International Careers Conference
Wellington, New Zealand
19-21 November 2009

Best practice in workplaces, schools and the community

Innovative career education/development practice in learning and workplace settings

Making a difference!

Evidence of the value of career development and life-long learning in addressing individual, economic and social goals

Individuals influencing services

The role of the citizen and community in shaping the development and delivery of career practice and policy

Culture counts

Understanding the needs and realising the potential of indigenous and migrant communities

Transformational technology

Creative and cost effective uses of technology that challenge existing thinking and shape new ways of working

Better career conversations

New career assessment tools, delivery techniques and resources used by practitioners to help clients make informed work and learning decisions in the context of the life they wish to lead

Changing patterns in the world of work

A look at global labour market trends and prospects, and their impact on employment, forms of work and migration

Register your interest at www.careers.govt.nz/conference2009

This conference has been designed for all those involved in careers, including Schools, University and Tertiary Institutions, Private Training Providers, Private Practitioners, HR and Recruitment, Central and Local Government, Employers, Unions, ITOs, Community Groups, Non Government Organisations and Industry Representatives.

New Zealand Government

Association internationale d'orientation scolaire et professionnelle

Principal Partners

Department of Labour
TE TĀU MĀORI

MINISTRY OF
SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT
Te Manatū Whakahiato Ora

Te Puni Kōkiri
REALISING MAŌI POTENTIAL

Industry Partners

The International Careers Conference

Wellington 19 to 21 November 2009

For the first time since 2002, Career Services, with the endorsement of the International Association for Educational and Vocational Guidance (IAEVG), will be hosting an international careers conference in Wellington from 19 to 21 November 2009.

The conference will showcase the latest in career development practice and policy in schools, tertiary and workplace settings. It will be a valuable forum for learning and gaining a national and international perspective right here in our own back yard. It will provide an excellent professional development opportunity to explore new ideas and gain insights for career professionals. The themes of the conference address a range of topics at the forefront of the careers agenda: best careers practice in schools, the changing nature of the workforce, technological advances and understanding the needs of indigenous and migrant communities.

For a full list of themes and to register your interest visit:

www.careers.govt.nz/conference2009

The early bird fee for CPANZ members will be in the range of $550 - $600 (excluding GST). By registering at the website, you will be alerted via e-mail when registrations open in November 2008.